out the profit picture of the B.C. Petroleum Corporation.

He gooled again Tuesday when he tried to straighten out a mistake he made at the start of his provincial tour Monday on the profits the Crown corporation will make this year. First he said BCPC had earned $100 million so far this year, but Tuesday he apologized for the mistake and said the $100 million figure represents the total earnings of the corporation in the last 18 months including $22 million from last oration in the last 18 months, including $93 million from last

According to those figures, BCPC would only have earned about $7 million so far this year.

But today BCPC chairman Jim Rhodes said Barrett's amended figures are also wrong, and the corporation actually earned about $41 million in the first four months of this fiscal year — from April 1 to July 1. He explained that BCPC earned $19 million in the first five months of operation, from Nov. 1973 to March 31, 1974; earned $93 million during the last fiscal year; has earned $41 million so far this year and may earn as much as $150 million

Grumbling in the Ranks

ney-general David Vickers come out swinging at the provincial government's hîring freeze. Since last February he noted that 20 per cent of the province's crown counsels have resigned. Until very recently the deputy attorney-general could not get permission to replace them. Not only have staff shortages caused serious morale problems, according to Vickers, they are costing the department money because private lawyers must be hired on a day-to-day basis at nearly twice the cost. While this is an indictment of the government's planning function, not to mention its cost-accounting procedure, the deputy attorney-general's remarks craise other questions. One would think that a government constantly berated for spendthrift policies and wholesale increases in the civil service should be publicly proud about saving the taxpayers' dollars. Yet Vicker's comments are the first official indication that the pinch is on. Secret treasury board memos float about the government warning about hiring new bodies.

Mayor Peter Pollen has a good

To admit the necessity of cutbacks and freezes cast a shadow on the government's grand designs, so confidently put forth over the last three years.

Premier Barrett predicts a balanced budget for the current fiscal year. Good stuff with an election less than one year away. But a balanced budget at the cost of an eroded, demoralized civil service that was given such high expectations when the NDP took office? The question remains, why doesn't the government level with the electorațe? Yes, we've made mistakes, could be the line, but now we are really going to tighten up. We've learned some lessons. Instead, the people are told that everything is beautiful, don't worry, and yes, we'll have a balanced budget. Austerity is a laudable goal in these economic times. But like so many other NDP policies, once embarked on, it is applied in a wholesale rigid manner. Everything must be cut, no exceptions. Of all the government's failings, its inflexibility and defensive secrecy rank among the worst. It is also interesting to consider the administration's reaction to the outspoken Vickers. Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall grumbled about proper channels while Premier Barrett talked about forthright civil servants. Perhaps the premier's remarks will encourage other civil. servants to speak out when their government · remains silent. Not likely though, because few others have the clout of the deputy attor-/ ney-general.

That such information comes from a civil servant rather than the government tells much about the doubts which plague this administration. No government likes to give the opposition ammunition, but a forthright administration even though it admits mistakes stands a better chance at the polls than one which is silent about its own fumblings. As for Vickers, one of the best human assets in this administration, he should remain vocal and critical of stupid policies. In the wake of his deserved outburst it should be fun to count up the crown counsels in a few weeks.

Jumping ship.

They're All Trying Hard to Lose

TORONTO - The Ontario election campaign so far has been a fascinating demonstration by all three political parties on how to lose elections. Just about eyery political axiom for winning has been violated, and apparently deliber-

The first axiom for winning is to exude confidence, to show a determination to win and at least put on the appearance of winning, no matter what the reality. The Conservative campaign of 1971, so smoothly directed by the Big Machine, was a masterpiece of successful electioneering in this record.

NDP Leader Relaxed

But this time, Premier Davis has been sounding from day one like a man who fears he is going to lose. He has been defensive, querelous and negative from the start. His main theme — and it has been quite deliberate - has been to question Liberal leader Robert Nixon's qualifications of leadership. In effect, he has been avoiding the case that Davis deserves to win and making the case that Nixon must lose. It is negative politics frowned upon in the politician's

NDP leader Stephen Lewis for his part is tacitly conceding in every performance that his party cannot win enough seats to form a government even though it held 20 to the Liberals' 23 in the last legislature, and the NDP was neck and neck with the Liberals in popular support in 1971. The concession is not mere dissembling on Lewis' part. He has been exerting a very relaxed effort, concentrating on the relatively small number of ridings where the NDP is strong. It may be realistic but it does rather raise the question of why the voter at large, dissatisfied with Conservative performance and looking for a change, should vote for

Lewis was asked just that during a friendly meeting with a student assembly at an Oshawa high school last week, and he answered by listing a variety of NDP policies which he suggested might appeal to his student questioner. He then found himself concluding, almost against his will: "If you want to change things, you change the government," porters with him were as surprised to hear it as Lewis seemed to be in saying it; it was the first time he had used the

The second axiom for winning flows from the first - never fight the campaign on your opponent's issues or terms. Davis has made some effort to and order" and standing up to the federal government, which is apparently out to put Ontario under.

But they have been too phoney to last and he has repeatedly succumbed to the temptation to react to Nixon on education and regional government, for example, and to Lewis on the loss of farm land, the housing shortage and rentgouging - all issues on which he can hardly win.

The third axiom for winning is to concentrate on your best chances and avoid scattering your resources. Here the worst violators have been the Liberals and it could well cost them the election. In riding after riding, one finds situations where the biberals have booted success by failing to recognize the riding as one that could be won with maximum effort and the best available candidate.

Liberal campaign organizers have been clearly too willing to accept local ho-hum effort and second-best candidates on the assumption that the Conservatives are too strong to be overturned.

Thus Peterborough — to take one example of many - is a riding which has not been Liberal, provincially, since 1937, It was won for the NDP in 1967 by Walter Pitman, a man whose support cut well across party lines, and lost again in the socialist scare of 1971 to a flaccid Tory of no great weight.

Peterborough riding is perhaps symptomatic of the Liberal problem in this election. Rarely has a government been more vulnerable to defeat; rarely has a government campaigned for re-election so badly. Everywhere one encounters the feeling, in varying degrees of intensity, that there should be a change, that it would be good for the political system if there was a change. All the signs point to a Liberal sweep but for one little problem - Nixon and to the Liberals have not yet won the voters over.

Tories Run Badly

Still some movement, no doubt modest enough, towards the Liberals is discernible, particularly in Metropolitan Toronto and southwestern Ontario. Conservative sources are admitting the possibility of falling below the 74 seats held in the last legislature. What is happening is certainly not a Liberal sweep as yet and it may prove to be a fizzle, but the Conservative cannot be said to be winning. They are losing, and the likeliest outcome at this stage is a Conservative minority government, with the Tories coming in with something under the magic majority number of 63 seats.

Taxpayers' Petition

An open letter to Saanich council: It was with utter dismay that we found our 1975 property taxes increased some 26 per cent in our Cordova Bay area, the highest increase of all districts. With near disbelief we watched the savings accumulated during the lengthy CUPE strike-lockout being dissipated by our elected Saanich representatives in giving an extra $800 (in addition to an understandable week of vacation) to those who continued to work. This was done after incredible wage settlements nearly double the rate of inflation. Question: Do you represent the entire electorate or merely certain groups? Surely you understand that the two prime causes of inflation are fiscal and monetary irresponsibility of government and that, if our officials are to represent us, they must practise governmental frugality and restraint. Government should set examples for unions and industry by following the example of those who, on more fixed incomes, are forced to extreme frugality and denial by your tremendously increased taxes, and by higher prices resulting from higher wage settlements unaccompanied by matching increases in productivity. Deflation must be the goal - not merely less inflation!

The Mayor and Broadcasting

As for the mayor's wild hyperbole about the quality of Canadian broadcasting, and Juneau's supposed sole responsibility for its rottenness, Victorians by now have come to make allowances for Pollen's strange opinions on radio and television. He's been a good mayor, but he has a curious, irrational blind spot about Canadian broad-

In his four years as mayor, Pollen has carried on sporadic warfare with local radio stations, cable television systems, national television networks, even the telephone company. All of his comments on Canadian broadcasting have been negative, destructively critical. Never has the mayor been quoted praising something in Canadian broadcasting. After all, Canadian broadcasters do some things right. CBC radio is unsurpassed, for example, and Canadian television performed well in bringing the Canada-Russia hockey series to all

Conversely, Pollen has nothing ing in the mandarin mold early on but fulsome praise for channel 9, the mediocre "educational" television station in Seattle which caters to snob appeal with its hours and hours of tennis telecasts and imported British serials.

A comment of Juneau's is apt: "Either we have a country, or we don't. Let's decide."

Far from delivering "one of the worst broadcasting systems" Juneau has done more to improve the quality of Canadian broadcasting than any other person - and it's amazing for someone who heads what is only a regulatory body. The CRTC has no programming function - something Pollen appears to have forgotten in his blunderbuss broadside.

The CRTC has dragged commercial broadcasting into the 19th century. Ask the Canadian performers who have benefitted from the Canadian content regulations if they feel Juneau's stewardship has been a failure.

The mayor has been a consistent critic of Canadian broadcasting, but the fact that he never has offered any criticism constructive or bothered to praise a good job well done just discredits the valid

Consuming Greed

With no desire or intention of entering into the politics of trade unions, may I point out to all the leaders and members the need for all to stop and think what they are doing to themselves, their families and their country by their present day actions and demands? To the patient consuming public it all looks like greed iness. This is a revolting characteristic in an individual, and much more so in large groups of men and women. A minimum amount of time and work for a maximum amount of pay-this spirit is the curse which threatens our Western free world. History records that such blatant disregard for the well-being of the "community" will most surely lead to the final destruction of our democratic way of life. #### Hit and Run

On Tuesday, Aug. 26, while riding her bicycle along the roadway of the Hillside Plaza about 5 p.m., our daughter was struck by a light blue car driven by an elderly woman. We wish to express our sincere thanks to the gentleman in a white car who immediately assisted in getting-our child back on her feet, and in attempting to straighten her bicycle. We had hoped the lady who struck her would have identified herself by now. Her selfadmitted carelessness not only injured and dazed our daughter, and frightened her younger sister, but so damaged a costly three-month-old "hirthday" hicycle as to require complete replacement which ICBC would have done, given the necessary information. Our children are now having difficulty understanding this lack of conscience on the part of someone "about as old as grandmother."

We would further like to express our deepest gratitude to the evening staff of the emergency and X-ray departments of the Royal Jubilee hospital. Despite a very busy evening with delayed suppers for all, they were fast, efficient, reassur ing, and cheerfully friendly throughout. They did much to relieve our daughter's anxiety, and we are extremely grateful.

Artificial Restraints

Why doesn't the consumer get a break once in a while when there is a surplus in some food item? When there is a shortage prices in the supermarkets' shoot up right now! Pork prices now are one excellent example. But if a surplus of some food should occur producers, marketing boards, government agencies, wholesale and retail outlets all clamor for a stabilized price, stablized at the latest high. So regardless of the supply situation the consumer is always paying as if a shortage situation existed. Small wonder the country has runaway inflation. The first step in licking inflation is occurs. Knock the price down to the consumer until the surplus is used up. That way the buyer gets a little breathing

OTTAWA - Manpower and Immigration Minister Robert Andras today announced measures to control the flood of CKDA and CFMS-FM have foreign visitors expected dur-been sold to A. M. (Sootty) ing the 1976 Summer Olympics in Montreal.

The measure, effective Oct. 1, will require some foreign visitors entering Canada through the United States to apply for non-immigrant visas before they come to Canada.

Under the new ruling, which only applies to temporary visitors in the United States, persons can apply for visas in of 12 Canadian consulates in the U.S.

U.S. citizens or visitors from France or the United King-- which are exempt quirements, Andras said.

The move was taken "to non-immigration visitor con-trol and enforcement in view of the 1976 Olympics and at the same time to help rationalize our non-immigrant entry system," a department spokesman said.

He added that the depart-

Grumbling in the Ranks

ney-general David Vickers come out swinging at the provincial government's hiring freeze. Since last February he noted that 20 per cent of the province's crown counsels have resigned. Until very recently the deputy attorney-general could not get permission to replace them. Not only have staff shortages caused serious morale problems, according to Vickers, they are costing the department money because private lawyers must be hired on a day-to-day basis at nearly twice

While this is an indictment of the government's planning function, not to mention its cost-accounting procedure, the deputy attorney-general's remarks raise other questions. One would think that a government constantly berated for spendthrift policies and wholesale increases in the civil service should be publicly proud about saving the taxpayers' dollars. Yet Vicker's comments are the first official indication that the pinch is on. Secret treasury board memos float about the government warning about hiring new bodies.

Mayor Peter Pollen has a good

To admit the necessity of cutbacks and freezes cast a shadow on the government's grand designs, so confidently put forth over the last three years.

> Premier Barrett predicts a balanced budget for the current fiscal year. Good stuff with an election less than one year away. But a balanced budget at the cost of an eroded, demoralized civil service that was given such high expectations when the NDP took office? The question remains, why doesn't the government level with the electorate? Yes, we've made mistakes, could be the line, but now we are really going to tighten up. We've learned some lessons. Instead, the people are told that everything is beautiful, don't worry, and yes, we'll have a balanced budget.

Austerity is a laudable goal in these economic times. But like so many other NDP policies, once embarked on, it is applied in a wholesale rigid manner. Everything must be cut, no exceptions. Of all flexibility and defensive secrecy rank among the worst. It is also interesting to consider the administration's reaction to the outspoken Vickers. Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall grumbled about proper channels while Premier Barrett talked about forthright civil servants. Perhaps the premier's remarks will encourage other civil servants to speak out when their government · remains silent. Not likely though, because few others have the clout of the deputy attorney-general.

That such information comes from a civil servant rather than the government tells much about the doubts which plague this administration. No government likes to give the opposition ammunition, but a forthright administration even though it admits mistakes stands a better chance at the polls than one which is silent about its own fumblings. As for Vickers, one of the best human assets in this administration, he should remain vocal and critical of stupid policies. In the wake of his deserved outburst it should be fun to count up the government's failings, its in- the crown counsels in a few weeks.

They're All Trying Hard to Lose

TORONTO - The Ontario election campaign so far has been a fascinating demonstration by all three political parties on how to lose elections. Just about every political axiom for winning has sion station in Seattle which caters been violated, and apparently deliberto snob appeal with its hours and

The first axiom for winning is to exude confidence, to show a determina-tion to win and at least put on the appearance of winning, no matter what the reality. The Conservative campaign of 1971, so smoothly directed by the Big Blue Machine, was a masterpiece of successful electioneering in this record.

NDP Leader Relaxed

But this time, Premier Davis has been sounding from day one like a man who fears he is going to lose. He has from the start. His main theme - and it has been quite deliberate - has been to question Liberal leader Robert Nixon's qualifications of leadership. In effect, he has been avoiding the case that Davis deserves to win and making the case that Nixon must lose. It is negative politics frowned upon in the politician's

NDP leader Stephen Lewis for his part is tacitly conceding in every performance that his party cannot win enough seats to form a government— even though it held 20 to the Liberals' 23 in the last legislature, and the NDP was neck and neck with the Liberals in popuing, but the fact that he never has lar support in 1971.

The concession is not mere sembling on Lewis' part. He has been exerting a very relaxed effort, concentrating on the relatively small number of ridings where the NDP is strong. It may be realistic but it does rather raise the question of why the voter at large, dissatisfied with Conservative performance and looking for a change, should vote for the NDP. Lewis was asked fust that during a friendly meeting with a student assem bly at an Oshawa high school last week, and he answered by listing a variety of NDP policies which he suggested might appeal to his student questioner. He then found himself concluding, almost against his will: "If you want to change things, you change the government." The re-porters with him were as surprised to hear it as Lewis seemed to be in saying it; it was the first time he had used the

The second axiom for winning flows from the first — never fight the cam-paign on your opponent's issues or terms. Davis has made some effort to advance his own issues - such as "law and order" and standing up to the federal government, which is apparently out to put Ontario under.

But they have been too phoney to last and he has repeatedly succumbed to the temptation to react to Nixon on education and regional government, for example, and to Lewis on the loss of farm land, the housing shortage and rentgouging - all issues on which he can hardly win.

The third axiom for winning is to concentrate on your best chances and avoid scattering your resources. Here the worst violators have been the Liberals and it could well cost them the election.

In riding after riding, one finds situations where the Liberals have booted success by failing to recognize the riding as one that could be won with maximum effort and the best available candidate.

Rarely has a government been more vulnerable to defeat: rarely has a government campaigned for re-election so badly. #### Hit and Run

On Tuesday, Aug. 26, while riding her bicycle along the roadway of the Hillside ·Plaza about 5 p.m., our daughter was struck by a light blue car driven by an elderly woman. We wish to express our sincere thanks to the gentleman in a white car who immediately assisted in getting our child-back on her feet, and in attempting to straighten her bicycle. We had hoped the lady who struck her would have identified herself by now. Her selfand dazed our daughter, and frightened her younger sister, but so damaged a costly three-month-old "birthday" cle as to require complete replacement — which ICBC would have done, given the necessary information. Our children are now having difficulty understanding this lack of conscience on the part of someone "about as old as grandmother

We would further like to express our deepest gratitude to the evening staff of the emergency and X-ray departments of the Royal Jubilee hospital. Despite a very busy evening with delayed suppers for all, they were fast, efficient, reassuring, and cheerfully friendly throughout. They did much to relieve our daughter's anxiety, and we are extremely grateful. Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Camp, Kingsley

Artificial Restraints

Why doesn't the consumer get a break once in a while when there is a surplus in some food item? When there is a shortage prices in the supermarkets shoot up right now! Pork prices now are one excellent example. But if a surplus of some food should occur producers. marketing boards, government agencies, wholesale and retail outlets all clamor for a stabilized price, stablized at the latest high. So regardless of the supply situation the consumer is always paying as if a shortage situation existed. Small wonder the country has runaway inflation. The first step in licking inflation is to flood the market when a surplus occurs. Knock the price down to the consumer until the surplus is used up. That way the buyer gets a little breathing spell. Free enterprise never hurt a gogetter. When times are good he's laughing. If they get tough it's every man for

Right now there is a world-wide surplus of skim milk powder and growing larger every day. Has anyone noticed a cut in dried milk prices in the supermarkets? No way those prices will be cut. That surplus will be allowed to rot or will be dumped in the ocean before that unholy alliance of milk producers, milk marketing boards and allied government agencies will give the consumer Artificial restraints on free enterprise have gone too far. The natural forces of supply and demand should be allowed free play in the market place. - K. F. McBryan, Cowichan Bay.

NOME, Alaska - The power schooner Ruby arrived from Herschel Island on the Arctic coast west of the mouth of the Mackenzie River yesterday afternoon with news that the Canadian explorer Vilhjalmar Stefansson who set out with two companions in March last year over the frozen polar sea to search for supposed new lands in the Beaufort Sea is not only alive and well but has accomplished every purpose for which the hazardous journey was undertaken. He had not been heard from since April 1914, and it was generally considered that he had been lost.

Increasingly, West Germany has turned away from its past as something long paid for, long since overcome. Critics of West German justice say this attitude permeates the courts, too. North is at stake, this is the ideal set-ting for the classic confrontation be-tween Indian and White Man. This is the "Fort of the Forks," the spot where the Liard River is swallowed by the majestic sweep of the Mackenzie on its way to the Arctic. The town that goes back to 1804 sits on an island in the Mackenzie just off the forks, the better to repel the invaders down through the

Now Fort Simpson, as the North wrestles with the spectre of a $7 billion wrestles with the spectre of a $1 offlion pipeline being thrust on its fragile life-style, seeks to repel another type of invader — the alien guests from the "wage economy" of "Southern Canada".

Father Pousset, an Oblate missionary who has been in Simpson for 20 years, in a passionate oration before the Berger pipeline hearings, says his town is now enduring what it always has had to endure: "Explorers, exploiters and burns." More than a few of the local lis-teners in the Legion Hall, in their fashionably-shaded glasses and spiffy

Mr. Justice Thomas R. Berger of the B.C. Supreme Court sits alone at a small bare table, chin in fist, listening. He wears not robes but a corduroy jacket with leather patches at the elbows. The ashtray which he never uses is his gavel. He is now into his six month of his one-man hearings on the views of the peoples of the North as to the prospect of their land being skewered by a pipeline bringing oil and gas to the insatiable consumers of "the South" who want not and yet want more. It would be the largest private endeavor of this country and he sits alone at his bare table and listens.

The liquor store is closed for the three days of the Berger hearings, except for one hour at the supposedly safe time of 9 p.m. The beer parlors are closed. It is a measure of the topsy-tur-vey logic in this town that the closing created great bitterness. But it was the Indian leaders, demonstrating their respect for the Berger commission, who wanted the booze locked up. It was the white businessmen of Fort Simpson, who so loudly deplore the drunkenness of the native people, who fought to keep the profits flowing

Gordon Erion is president of the chamber of commerce, a dark, brooding young man in his date 20s. He is from Toronto. He is in the automotive parts business and runs a liquor outlet. He complains to the commission that if there is any more indecision about the pipeline "the small businessman can't plan." He brings with him a mod economist with flowing moustache who talks of "social-economic factors" and "the impact multiplier" of dollars from a pipeline turning over in town. Presum-

Gary Black is chairman of the village council. He is from Toronto. He wears smoked glasses, gold-colored clothes and off-white cowboy boots. Fort Simpson, he said, is a town of "fear, mistrust and ingorance." He says things such as "schools should develop a passive self-concept." It is Black who fought most bitterly against the liquor outlets closing down,

It is a town of the wooden sidewalks and empty soft drink tins decorating every fetid ditch. The population is 1,200, two-thirds of it native Indian. The division is so complete that the first day of the hearing is held in the "white"

On this jaunt through the hinterland Judge Berger has "asked" the competing pipeline consortiums, Canadian Arctic Gas Pitgeline and Foothills Pipeline, to send along representatives to explain their case. (In the North, whatever Judge Berger wants, Judge Berger

Mr. A. I. Workman of Arctic Gas says it is just like imagining yourself at down for a thread on the football field.
"That is the pipeline." Even more "the thread is buried." The idiogy of the analogy in Fort Simpson is beyond words. The judge's chin remains buried

Mr. John Elwood of Foothills talks of "PSI" ratios. He assures questioners that pipeline workers will be kept in camps well away from Fort Simpson, that they will not be allowed vehicles and as a respite from their 12-hour-aday seven-day-a-week schedule will be shunted quickly to Edmonton for necessnutted quickly to Edmonton for necessary body releases. One gets the impression we are discussing some caged animals, a zoo custodian assuring the locals that the boa constrictors will not be allowed to escape. Even Mr. Black concedes that "Fort Simpson is totally incapable of coping with the impact of a pipeline"

Chief Antoine pleads: "This is a place to live, not a place to tap." Emilie Casavant, a nervous girl who is the high school president, pleads: "Is this what you want? Should we crawl so a

He is a member of the Territorial Council, and worked with Major-Gen. E. L. M Burns in Canada's peace force in the Middle East. by the rather silly policy announcment in Yellowknife last week by Indian Af-fairs Minister Judd Buchanan — an ineffectual figure who is looked upon with pitying resignation in the North — that Ottawa is the sole representative of Canada abroad. It is a staggering misunderstanding of what the native people are trying to say.

Father Pousset, who has been here for 20 years as opposed to Buchanan's ors-year executive jet expertise, says to Judge Berger, as the sun streams in the side door of the Legion Half at 9 p.m., the result of the ripeline "would be genocide."

He gestures — symbolically — at the steel microphone in front of him. "Steel kills," he explains, in the North. If more-steel comes in — the Indians will die. Why? They will, be overpowered by something that does not feel the cold. You have to think about that a bit. But once you do you well see

Success for Mrs. Gandhi?

By WILLIAM BORDERS

NEW DELHI - Two months ago, when the government of the world's most populous democracy declared a state of emergency and began arresting thousands of its opponents, there were confident tarian new position would not be tolerated.

Among opposition groups here, as well as among people who care about India in places like London and New York, many foresaw the emergence of an underground resistance movement, whose disruptive activities would force Prime Minister Indira Gandhi to relent.

From a hideout in southern' India, one underground figure called for a wave of general strikes in protest; another issued a mimeographed sheet lyze the functioning of the

But the calls have largely gone unheeded and no resistance movement has devel-

In the cities and in the countryside, in the regions of the isolated rich and of the many, many poor, India is almost completely at peace, and Prime Minister Gandhi, in the opinion of knowledgeable people here, is as firmly in con-trol as she has ever been.

What happened?
"Much as I hate to admit it, the state of emergency is popular," said a disappointed opponent for the government, who had hoped for more signs of resistance. "If the people are for it, the fact that a few chaps like me are actively against it does not make much difference.

The reasons that people have for supporting — or at least not actively opposing — the government's crackdown are Here are some of the prin-

Businessmen are gratified by the crusading spirit of "get-ting India moving," as cabinet ministers like to describe the goal.

The new mood is expres this way, in a recent quota-tion from the prime minister as "bad characters."

GOVERNMENT OF CANADA BONDS

DATED OCTOBER 1, 1975

Bank of Canada is authorized by the Minister of Finance to receive subscriptions for a loan, to be issued for cash as follows:

2 year 4 month 9% bonds due February 1, 1978

Issue price: 99.60% yielding about 9.18% for 2 years 4 months

Exchangeable

at the option of the holder, on or before October 31, 1977, into an equal par value of 9% bonds due February 1, 1980 yielding about

9.11% for 4 years 4 months

Interest payable February 1 and August 1
Four months' interest-payable February 1, 1976
Denominations: $1,000, $5,000, $25,000, $100,000 and $1,000,000

5 year 9% bonds due October 1, 1980 Issue price: 99.00% yielding about 9.25% for 5 years Exchangeable at the option of the holder, in the six month period January 1, 1980 to June 30, 1980, into an equal par value of 5 year 91% bonds to be dated October 1, 1980 and due October 1, 1985 yielding about. 9.35% for the full 10 year period commencing October 1, 1975

Interest payable April 1 and October 1
Denominations: $1,000, $5,000, $25,000, $100,000 and $1,000,000 and

-20 year 10% bonds due October 1, 1995 Issue price: 98.00% yielding about 10.24% to maturity Interest payable April 1 and October 1 Denominations: $1,000, $5,000, $25,000, $100,000 and $1,000,000.

It is a condition of the issue of the 10% bonds due October 1, 1995 that the Government of Canada will operate a purchase fund. The Government of Canada undertakes to use its best efforts to purchase during each quarter of each calendar year to maturity, commencing October 1, 1975, when available in the open market at prices nor exceeding the original issue price, plus accrued interest, at least 2 of 1% of the principal amount of the 10% bonds maturing October 1, 1995. The Government of Canada may, however, in any quarter of any year apply to this undertaking the purchase of those bonds made during the immediately preceding twelve months and not previously credited. By maturity the maximum amount of this issue which would be required to be purchased by the Government of Canada under these provisions would be 60% of the original issue.

Bank of Canada has agreed to acquire a minimum of $250 million of the new bonds, open as to maturity. Proceeds of the offering will be used to redeem $430.4 million of Government of Canada 5½% bonds maturing on October 1, 1975 and for general purposes of the Government of Canada.

The new 9% bonds due February 1, 1978, the new 9% bonds due October 1, 1980 and the new 10% bonds due October 1, 1995 will be dated October 1, 1975 and will bear interest from that date. Principal and interest are payable in lawful money of Canada. Principal is payable at any Agency of Bank of Canada. Interest is payable at any branch in Canada of any chartered bank without charge. Definitive bonds will be available on October 11, 1975 and thereafter in two forms: bearer form with coupons attached and fully registered form with interest payable by cheque. Bonds of both forms will be in the same denominations and fully interchangeable as to denomination and/or form without charge (subject to Government transfer requirements where applicable).

The new bonds are authorized pursuant to an Act of the Parliament of Canada and both principal and interest are a charge on the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada.

Applications for the new bonds may be made, subject to allotment, through any investment dealer eligible to act as a primary distributor or through any bank in Canada.

Hunter Fitness Study Exposes Danger Point

Hunters should heed a note of warning contained in the findings of a fitness study commissioned by the provincial fish and wildlife branch and recently completed by Dr. David Docherty of the University of Victoria's physical education

It could be a matter of life and death. Basically, Docherty found active hunters enjoy a tremendous gain in physical fitness during the early part of the

So let's go back to the beginning. The study revolved around 50 individuals — 25 "committed" hunters hand-picked by the branch and 25 non-hunters who formed the control

Initial tests involving a static bicycle and various devices to monitor body functions were conducted on both groups prior to the start of hunting season last year and subsequent readings were taken mid-way through the season, at the end of the season and 13 weeks later. Through the course of the study, each group was whittled down to 18 individuals.

"The present concept of fitness has to do with the aerobic capacity of an individual," said Docherty. This is based on a person's ability to utilize oxygen efficiently.

Oxygen consumption is expressed in terms of millilitres of oxygen, per kilogram of body weight, per minute. The figure thus derived reflects the fitness of an individual and the average or mean oxygen consumption for an active male is 48.5, plus or minus 7.89.

The initial test found that the hunters were in relatively poor condition. Hunters had a mean figure of 35 while the control group was somewhat better at around 42.

In mid-season, the picture had changed. "We found that the gains of the hunter were significantly greater than the gains of the control," Docherty explained.

These gains were maintained throughout the season but in the case of hunters at least, declined in the post-season testing. Control group members, on the other hand, fared better in the final test because they had been "turned on" to fitness and had been working out two or three times per week since the initial testing stage.

"If hunting is the only form of physical activity (as the hunters indicated on their forms), it does seem to offer aerobic fitness," concludes Docherty. "In fact, it offers aerobic fitness gains comparable to a fairly strenuous exercise program." since the initial testing stage.

But that finding also contains a limiting clause.

In order to get these gains, a person has to undergo a stress of at least 60 per cent of his maximum heart rate and that's a minimum.

Which brings what has been termed the "sudden-death syndrame" into the picture.

"At the moment, a number of people seem to suffer some form of heart attack... but we don't know why and we don't really know how to avoid it." Post-mortum examinations of the victims of such attacks has revealed no evidence of heart

Emotional excitements causes a sudden release of adren-alin into the body. If this sudden hormonal stress happens to coincide with physical stress, "even on a healthy heart it can be fatal," said Docherty.

"It's almost a warning to hunters," said Docherty, The implication is that you should get fit before going hunting and try to maintain a high level of fitness during the summer.

Of course, the hunters who never leave a vehicle don't

A Bargain at Any Cost

Inflation may be creating problems for University of Victoria athletic manager Mike Eleock, but the intramural sports and recreation program is still the best bargain count from the registrar's of-fice at the end of the month, Elcock expects to have a bud-get of about $130,000 to run the show in the McKinnon Building this year. That in-cludes intercollegiate pro-cludes intercollegiate programs as well as the intramurals and recreation, run by co-ordinator Penny Lough.

Intramurals and recreation will cost about $12,000, up from last year but still a tremendous value considering their popularity. Between 35 and 40 per cent of the students are involved and already 30 recreational instruction courses are booked.

It the undergrads pay.

That means an estimated increase of about $50,000 in the budget but out of that Elcock must pay the salaries of part-time coaches, pool life-guards and gymnasium attendants, an item the administration looked after last year. The school will continue to pay the salaries of Mike, Penny, athletic department secretary Irene Garnham and part-time secretary Margo Speer. Elcock, meanwhile, will continue to pay for student help in the sports and

SCOTTISH LEAGUE

Paying for coaches and pool and gym attendants will ead up most of the increase, Elcock expects, which leaves him with amout the same total he had last year for athletics.

Rising equipment and tray-el costs will hit hardest at the intercollegiate program. Air fares will be up 10 to 20 per cent and so will meals and accent and so will meals and ac-commodation.

Elcock expects the three biggest budget items at the intercollegiate level will be basketball at $10,000 (up from about $8,000), rugby at $10,000 (up from $6,000) and volley-ball at $6,000 (up from $3,000). Coaching salaries account for some of the increase but many yarsity sports, notably basketball, will recoup a por-tion of the money in gate retion of the money in gate re-ceipts.

Rising costs have forced UVic to drop three inter-collegiate sports this year — ice bockey, skiing and judo — and postpone the start of inand postpone the start of in-tercollegiate aquatics.

But there's no plan to drop varsity sports on a wholesale basis in favor of intramurals. Elcock feels the two pro-grams complement each other and, in any case, none of the intramural and recrea-tion budget is being sacrificed to accommodate the school to accommodate the school

Mail Van Safety Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) regulations and better driver training were two of the recommendations made by an inquiry board formed after the accidental deaths of three postal van drivers.

A post office announcement Tuesday said major recom-mendations by the board also included better driver selec-tion methods, tire selection and inflation, regulations and design changes to sliding doors of step vans, correct vehicle selection and design changes of seat and foot rest

The inquiry, headed by Joseph Farley, safety, health and welfare director for the post office, began Aug. 6 following three traffic accidents in July and August involving postal yans.

In the accidents, two drivers died when their vans overturned after collisions. In the other accident the driver was run over by his truck after he parked it, left it in neutral and failed to set the parking brake.

The Letter Carriers' Union had threatened to halt all mail trucks to back a demand tion into the accidents.

Union spokesman Emile Lehingrat, said it appeared that Ottawa postal "authorities made scapegoats of the three

He said the recommendations contained in the report place little if any blame on the post office and it appeared that postal authorities took the recommendations from the fleet safety hand-book, ingoring the inquiry re-

VANCOUVER (CP) - Police were searching today for an American wanted on murder charges who eluded capture by leaping into Vancouver Harbor Tuesday night.

The unidentified man, described as armed and danger-ous, is wanted in at least three states by the FBI on murder charges.

Police said the man was working on a boat inside a terminal warehouse when he was approached about a dis-crepancy in the licence plates on a car outside the ware-house.

After leaping off the dock he swam underneath it and police said he apparently climbed up one of the pylons.

The escaper's wife was being held for questioning.

vice life.

Money to design and test at new C5A wing was approved last summer by both the House and Senate Armed Services Committees as part of the defense authorization bill, contained in a category entitled "aircraft modifications."

Both committees agreed to the air force program after being told the controversial $4.4 billion D-5A transport fleet already had been put on limited duty only four years after becoming operational.

Under the original C-5A contract, the plane was to have a service life of 30,000 flying hours and be able to carry a load of 220,000 pounds on a flight of up to 3,000 miles.

When early design models of the plane weighed too much, the air force and Lockheed, the plane's manufacturer, decided to take some of the weight out of the wings. Fatigue and stress tests, made as early as 1969, showed cracks might occur in the lighter wings after only 7,500 hours of flying with maximum loads.

To fix that defect, the air force proposed in early 1970 the first of a series of wing modifications — this one to cost $15 million.

Later in 1970, a technical cost $15 million.

Later in 1970, a technical panel appointed by the thenair force secretary Robert Seamans suggested that an entire new wing might be needed. That advice was not immediately taken.

Go Italian-Try Lasagna

Our Lasagna recipe serves 8 to 10 people; can be made in advance and costs approxi-mately $5. An added advan-tage is that it freezes well. Four great points by which I hope you profit.

LASAGNA (serves 8 to 10)

- Sauce:

  2 tbsp. oil
  1½ lbs. ground round or chuck beef
  1 medium onion chopped
- 1/4 tsp. garlic salt 1 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. pepper
  1 tsp. rosemary one 14-oz. can tomato sauce
  one 10-oz. can mushrooms
- OR stems and pieces chopped green pepper c. hot water
  Other Ingredients:
- lasagna noodles tsp. salt
- c: cottage cheese large slices Mozzarella cheese (2 packages)

In a large pot or very large frying pan saute the meat and onion in the oil and brown lightly, stirring all of the time to break up the meat. Add the garlic salt, salt, pepper, rose-mary, tomato sauce, green pepper, mushrooms and hot

Meanwhile cook the 8 lasagna noodles in a large pot in 2 or 3 quarts of boiling water with the 2 teaspoons salt for 20 minutes. Drain in colander and rinse in cold water to prevent clinging together.

Into a very large pan or small roaster (or foil pan) measure 2 cups of the sauce. Arrange layers as follows: 4 Arrange layers as follows: 4 lasagna noodles, cottage cheese, 4 slices Mozzarella, HALF of remaining 'sauce, 4 lasagna noodles, all of remaining sauce and finally 4 slices Mozzarella. Cover snugly with buttered double foil. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 to 40 minutes. Let rest 15 minutes before serving for cutting NOTE: I made two medium casseroles instead of one large. I served one for a meal for four and froze the other for the future, unbaked.

Cookies: Make 'em Count

are to be found on every bag of flour and tin of baking powder; in nearly every newspaper and home magazine; and by the hundreds in cookbooks. Yet a need exists today for cookie recipes which contribute their quota goodness to the day's meals.

The reason might be laid to total food costs being higher than we feel we can afford; or we may be listening to re-ports of the "malnutrition of average Canadians" in this land of plenty.

The latter reason is the one to take most seriously for by working on better nutrition we can also, believe this, cut total food costs. A side benefit, of course, is lower costs for health services. So the public will be better off in many ways. As for cookie recipes — take almost any recipe: in-stead of sifted white flour, substitute wholewheat flour, substitute wholewheat flour including a percentage of wheat germ and bran (added by you); cut the fat content by one-quarter; cut sugar by three-quarters; result, a cook-

It won't dissolve in the mouth, but it will be worth chewing. It will have flavor, texture and food value, for it satisfies the need for food with less quantity than when

The taste and texture will not be the same as with the original recipe. But who cares? Experiment a little when you feel confident. In the meantime, try these two-recipes which give you three very different kinds of cookies from the two recipes.

First make a batch of Schoolbox Cookies, using half for cut-out cookies as suggest-ed; and the other half as "shells" in muffin pans. Some

Next make a batch of Date-Raisin Drops, using half as drop cookies: the remainder as filling for the shells.

You will like all three, and probably think of other reci-pes that you can use in the same way. All the cookies store well, which means that folks who are baking for one in the family will have a variety in the refrigerator (freezer not needed for 2 weeks or so in covered container) to serve the welcome drop-ins for lunch or supper. An assortment of three kinds of good homemade cookies is an investment in hospitality.

cut most of the raisins in half to get an improved flavor and better distribution with the cut dates. Be sure to cut across each date, for there is usually one pit left in each pack of "pitted dates" and even one can spell disaster to someone's precious tooth.

solved included the costs of transporting the carcasses to market and making game meat attractive dinner fare over traditional favorites. Changes also would be needed in legislation which now forbids the sale of most game meat — buffalo is an exception — from ranches. Questioned at the close of his presentation. Telfer's a id probable cause of failure in a government scheme to raise reindeer for meat purposes in reindeer for meat purposes in the Northwest Territories in the 1960s was remoteness of-success of northern ranches would depend heavily on the animals feeding as they now do and not having to import large quantities of grain. Telfer said that economics would dictate that northern ranching would be conducted period of years, a certain amount of change should be apparent from one season to another. This is accomplished by creating sunny beds to be alternated between, say, salad vegetables and annual flowers; thus a change is noted each year and the soil too has a rest with the change of plants. the idea of a garden being only a place for work, we con-sider of first importance a comfortable sitting and loung-

The first requirement when choosing this spot is easy access from the house, Unless a perfect source of shade from sun or wind is already present elsewhere in the garden, usually we select a space near a door.

Take out a couple of chairs, a pad of scrap paper for notes, a companion for discussion, and just sit and write random ideas on what you would like to see around you during an hour or two of comduring an hour or two of com-plete relaxation.

You will discover you need a fairly smooth surface for chairs and a very firm table. That means levelling the ground. It should be useable after rain which indicates care in arranging drainage — always away from the house

The failure to pay proper attention to the opponents' bidding — and, hence, the failure to draw the correct inferences from it — was re-sponsible for the defeat of South's game contract in to-day's deal. The hard came up in a duplicate game. East-1. West vulnerable. West deals.

West North East South Pass Pass 2NT Pass Pass

Opening lead: Jack of V.

After South had won the opening heart lead with his king, he entered dummy via the diamond fack. He then led the jack of spades and finessed against East's hopedfor king. Upon winning this trick with the king, West cashed the heart ace, and followed up by leading another heart to the board's queen. His two remaining hearts were now established as win-spade king was a 50-50 propo-

CANADA EGGS DUMPED Business Boom in Private Mails

courier services are reaping a boom because of an unease with mail deliveries caused chiefly by strikes, industry spokesmen say.

Demands for a faster, more reliable movement of essential materials, such as cheques, blood plasma, critical data-processing information, has spawned a new interest in the couriers.

. One courier spokesman said the post of-fice does a good job with mail but inter-city courier services can provide faster and more reliable movement of materials.

"Increasing numbers of businesses are relying on private courier services because of strikes and ineptitude affecting parcel delivery" the spokesman said.

Couriers say business is doubling annually because they can normally deliver to major Canadian cities between the close of one business day and the beginning of the next.

Traditional customer of couriers is the banking system, says Joseph Macaluso, president of Purolator Courier Ltd. in Toronto. He said about $6.5 billion in cheques is cleared in Toronto and Montreal daily and a one-day, delay in cashing them could cost banks $1.5 milliop.

"This rather sizeable amount illustrates the savings that can be earned by the rapid transfer of negotiated cheques."

On a national basis, however, Macaluso estimates that 75 per cent of Purolator's revenue comes from other than bank deliveries. The more common items transported by couriers include documents with critical delivery deadlines, blood plasma, data-processing material and machinery parts.

Industry-officials say the development of a national electronic fund transfer system (EFTS) by the chartered banks would reduce cheque usage and cut into the courier busi-

Bankers' Association said the EFTS "is not feasible for a good many more years."

The inter-city courier business relies on trucks and scheduled airline flights for the movement of parcels. Mr. Macaluso said his company sends a uniformed guard to acompany parcels on each airline flight.

Premium parcel services such as Expedair on Air Canada and TOPS on CP Air guarantee delivery from one airport to another but the parcels. other but personal couriers are still needed

Although Purolator has traditionally catered to the long-distance market, Macaluso said the company is considering becoming involved in local courier service.

"Many customers have been requesting intra-city service and the matter is now under study," he said. "I expect we will offer the service shortly to meet the growing dethe service shortly to meet the growing de-mand."

DAVE'S FUN WITH FIGURES

He goofed again Tuesday when he tried to straighten out a mistake at the start of his provincial tour Monday on the profits the crown corporation will make this year.

First he said BCPC had earned $100 million so far this year, but Tuesday he apologized for the mistake and said the $100 million figure represents the total earnings of the corporation in the last 18 months, including $93 million from last year.

According to those figures, BCPC would only have earned about $7 million so far this year.

But today BCPC chairman Jim Rhodes said Barrett's amended figures are also wrong, and the corporation actually earned about $41 million in the first four months of this fiscal year – from April 1 to July 1.

He explained that BCPC earned $19 million in the first five months of operation, from Nov. 1973 to March 31, 1974; earned $93 million during the last fiscal year; has earned $11 million, so far this year and may earn as much as $150 million

But Burrett, the man who continually condemns Social Credit opposition for failing to do proper research and not getting its facts straight, is running into troubles with other facts and figures on his fall tour.

He told a Penticton audience this week only 54 families of striking pulp workers were receiving welfare, but last week Human Resources Minister Norm Levi said 160 families human resources department spokesman confirmed that the premier probably quoted an incorrect figure.

the Princess Marguerite actually made a profit this summer.

Premier Barrett said this week the ferry service made $100,000 profit under government auspicies but Morrison said the premier "doesn't know the difference between gross' profit and net profit."

Morrison said he thinks the government is shifting some of the costs of the Marguerite on to other government departments to make the operation's financial picture look much

The highways department, for example, he said, has carried some of the wharf expenditures, the lands department has paid for new docking facilities and advertising and promotion work has been charged to the travel department.

"If, a private enterprise was running it they would have to charge all those expenses against gross profit and I don't believe they would end up with a profit," said Morrison.

Much of the initial ferry start-up costs was not charged to the Marguerite either, according to Morrison.

A highways department spokesman said his department is in charge of docking facilities for most government ferries but not the Marguerite.

Is This Man The Slasher?

LOS ANGELES - Vaughn Greenwood, the man police say is the prime suspect in the Los Angeles slasher murders, was sentenced to prison from 32 years to life.

Greenwood, 32, who has not yet been charged with the slasher murders, was sentenced for a hatchet-and-knife attack on two men and six burglaries, including two at the home of actor Burt Reynolds, in January and Febru-

Jud'ge Jack Goertzen, at the begining of Greenwood's trial, placed a ban on police making any statements about the slasher killings in case it
